Kelly Gallagher

Readicide: How schools are killing reading and what you can do about it

It is no secret that with each passing year students are reading less. Beyond the list of the usual causes: print-poor environment, low parental education-level, mindless electronic entertainment, this session will focus on another major contributor to the death of young readers: our schools. More importantly, specific steps to avoid "readicide" in our classrooms will be shared.

Kelly will model strategies proven to raise both academic and recreational readers.

*The Radisson meeting room has a complimentary wireless connection.
Please feel free to bring your laptops.*
