
Letters to the Editor

A Call for Responses from the MCTE Membership

In future issues, the editors hope to feature a “Letters to the Editors” section, which could respond to a number of topics. A partial list could include:

- The content of articles represented in this issue
- Suggestions about issues in teaching that MEJ’s readership should be responding to and writing articles and letters about
- Positions on the state of the profession
- Positions on High School literature, composition, and language standards
- Concerns about censorship
- Concerns about whether a list of books that students should read before graduation should be “standard procedure” for teachers
- Issues surrounding the appropriateness or inappropriateness of teaching certain types of literature
- Issues related to teaching with technology
- Positions on how to teach grammar to students relying on “grammar and spell checks”
- Issues related to literary theory

- Positions on how to show how excellent teaching should be valued and recognized
- Positions on the funding of higher education

We hope you’ll view this list as we do—a very incomplete set of possibilities. We invite you to send us a letter on a subject that moves you. We would love to receive those “letters” at any time during the year prior to June 1, 2010.

Contribute to our discussion. We look forward to hearing from you.
